

Hezbollah's organizational structure has evolved and expanded since the group's rise in 1982. Its hierarchy is comprised of the Shura Council at the top, with five subordinate specialized Councils: the Executive, Judicial, Parliamentary, Political, and Jihad Councils. Each Council oversees several sub-entities that handle Hezbollah's affairs in various sectors. This structure allows the Shiite organization to run its "state within a state" in a relatively efficient and organized manner.

For additional information, visit hezbollah.org/organizational-chart

Last updated: January 2019

Organizational Chart

A Project of
UNITED AGAINST A NUCLEAR IRAN

